

Abstract

An adjustable height support column for an examination table/chair is disclosed. The column includes nesting sleeve sections that are relatively 5 slidable with respect to one another. The column uses camming guide rails in combination with cam followers located on the sleeve sections to provide for a column that is sturdy, compact, and may support a sufficiently 10 heavy patient. One or more linear actuators provide for extension and retraction of the column.